Missouri Democrats to select 54 of 71 delegates tonight

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter is expected to win 40 national convention delegates when Missouri Democrats meet at 10 congressional district conventions tonight.

Two preliminary delegate selection meetings at the township, ward and county level gave the lion's share of delegates to those supporting an uncommitted slate, but that was before state party leaders endorsed Carter's candidacy. The endorsement is expected to swing most of the delegate strength to Carter's camp.

Democrats will select 54 delegates to the national convention to night. The rest of the state's 71-member delegate will be chosen at the state convention here June 12. Missouri's delegation is the largest from a state which does no hold a primary election.

At the local-level delegate selection meetings April 20 and May 11, Democrats went along with the wishes of their political leaders and selected uncommitted slates in 66 per cent of the cases. Carter got 17 per cent of the available support.

Then, 34 party leaders, led by Sen. Thomas Eagleton, signed a statement May 13 supporting Carter. One of those signing the statement, state Treasurer James Spainhower, estimated that 40 of the delegates selected Tuesday night would back Carter and that Missouri would eventually send 60 delegates to New York in July to support his nomination.

Some Democrats are expected to hold onto the uncommitted slates. State Sen. Robert Young of St. Ann said he believed that three of the six delegates to be elected in the 2nd

Democrats will elect delegates and three alternates tonight at the Ramada Inn to represent the 10th Congressional District at the National Convention.

Under the state delegate selection plan, 54 of the state's 71 delegates will be selected at these Congressional district conventions. The remaining 17 delegates will be selected at the state Democratic convention June 12 in Jefferson City.

Kincy top grad at Sikeston

Mark Kincy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Kincy of 240 W. Gladys St., was named valedictorian of the 1976 Sikeston High School graduating class at commencement exercises Monday night in the field house. He had a grade point average of 3.96.

For the first time in the history of the school, two students tied for salutatorian. They are Mark Cheatham and Peter Myers. Each had a grade point average of 3.86.

Kincy plans to attend college at the University of Missouri at Rolla next fall and major in engineering.

DEXTER — A high-speed chase which began here early today— involving Dexter police, state highway patrol and Butler and Stoddard County sheriff's officers—ended with the arrest of two persons in Butler County.

Arrested and being held in the Butler County jail at Poplar Bluff for Stoddard County authorities are Terry Wayne Quigley and Dale Eddie Bellew, whose ages and addresses were not reported.

Charges against the two had not been filed this morning in either county.

Dexter Police Chief Jim Teeters said this morning that after the truck occupied by the two men had been stopped, a quantity of marijuana, tape players and possible burglar tools were found.

Teeters said the chase started about 2:35 a.m. when Dexter Police Lt. Roger Hubbard spotted a vehicle turn onto the Foushee Candy Co. parking lot at 6 N. Catalpha St.

Hubbard waited at a street intersection as the truck turned onto the parking lot, waiting to get a look at the license number for a routine check.

He saw the plate had been altered.

He turned on the red lights of his patrol car to signal the truck to stop, but the driver of the truck had other ideas and took off at a high rate of speed down Catalpha Street.

Hubbard radioed the police dispatcher that he was in pursuit of a possibly stolen truck.

The chase reached speeds of up to 95 miles per hour before leaving the city limits. The truck ran red lights and chased several other vehicles off the

The barrel was valued at $10 and the beer at $23, police said.

Ross gets 60 years

CHARLESTON — Calvin Ross, 24, of St. Louis was formally sentenced this morning in Circuit Court on first-degree robbery and assault with malice and forethought charges by Judge Stanley Grimm of Cape Girardeau, who presided over a May 12 jury trial in the change of venue case from Stoddard County in which Ross was found guilty.

Judge Grimm sentenced Ross to 35 years on the robbery charge and 25 years on the assault charge, which he set to run consecutively with 60-year sentences assessed on previous convictions, making a total of 120 years.

The May 12 trial pertained to a Dec. 4, 1973, armed robbery at Johnson's Grocery & Package Store, located in Stoddard County, six miles west of Vanduser, and physical assault on Sandra Kaye, the store manager.

The previous convictions stemmed from another robbery the same day at Barry's Grocery near Kewanee and felonious assault on Willie Hardin, who was tending the store on the day of the robbery.

Artists and craftsmen discuss their work

DEXTER — Artists and craftsmen exhibiting their works in the art-in-the-park event Saturday and Sunday in West City Park were open and friendly in discussing their work with people who turned out for the event, which was held in connection with the annual Strawberry Festival.

"What kind of film do you use", Ed Lohrum of Caseyville, Ill., asked a reporter taking pictures of his exhibit, which won a $50 prize for best art exhibit.

He chatted awhile, discussing his work which was composed of "a little bit of everything." He pointed out one of his works was created from two color slides sandwiched together, then praised another photographer, who had some black and white work on exhibit.

This seemed to be the rule rather than exception: While pushing their own work, the artists praised the show as a whole and complimented the work of the other artists.

Rich Snider of Poplar Bluff won the $50 prize for crafts exhibits with his woodcarvings.

On Saturday, Snider's wife, who was present for the exhibit, said one of the works her husband was exhibiting of an old man took over 100 hours to complete.

Sunday afternoon, while the high school stage band gave a concert, Snider sat peacefully under a tree demonstrating his skills while his daughter Jenna slept.

Bob Brison, chairman of the event, reported that this year's show had an "unusually good supply of artists from five states."

He named several artists the organizers of the event were particularly proud to have, including Charles Rheinhart of Cape Girardeau, Bonnie Shields of Springfield, Tenn., and Sally Poe of Dexter.

Rheinhart had the paintings with the highest price tags at the weekend show. One large painting had a price tag of $7,500, and an even larger painting had an asking price of $8,500.

Most of the people present for the exhibit were just looking, enjoying the art, but at least one person was looking for the works of a particular artist who, as it turned out, was not present.

Dexter High School students had their own display featuring a number of paintings which, for the most part, were not for sale.

Brison said the mood being strived for was low-key. "Everybody sets up where they want to and when they want to," he said.

The days were sunny, children were running and playing and the artists and spectators seemed to be enjoying themselves. Many sat on the grass to listen to the band play or eat strawberry pie which was being sold.

"It's been a pretty successful day," Brison said as he surveyed the scene.

LET OUR PEOPLE GO

While U.S. State Department continues to follow its long-standing "head-in-the sand" policy toward the Soviet Union, the torture and terror of the Red dictatorship continues unabated. Reliable sources such as Alexander Solzenhitsyn report that since "detente" the situation for the victims of communism has worsened, resulting in "Stalinism without Stalin."

Rev. Vins, who is secretary for the Council of Evangelical Christians and Baptists in the Soviet Union (CCECB) — an organization representing several hundred thousand Iron Curtain Christians — was arrested in 1966 for demonstrating for religious liberty in Moscow. Sentenced to three years at hard labor in prison, he came out of the Stalin jails in 1969, broken in health, but not in spirit. So the KGB promptly framed a new case against him, and he went into hiding in the CCECB underground. He was apprenended in March, 1973 and held without trial until February, 1975, when it was announced that he had been convicted for the non-crime of "harming the interests of Societ citizens under the pretext of carrying out religious activity."

For this Rev. Vines was sentenced to five years at hard labor in prison to be followed by five years "exile" — i.e., comcentration camp. In addition, his wife and children were thrown out of their home and "liberated" from their personal possessions — beds, blankets, heavy clothing, cooking utensils, furniture, even their sewing machine — plunging them into dire poverty.

Congressman John H. Buchanan of Alabama has introduced a bill (HR 606) in Washington, which declares that it is the sense of the U.S. Congress "that the Soviet Government should immediately release Georgi Vins from imprisonment and allow him and other Christinas and other religious believers within its borders to worship God freely according to their own conscience, as the Soviet Union is committed to do by the provisions in its own constitution and by the provisions of the United Nations Covenant on Civil and Political Rights which the Soviet Union has ratified." So far, about 70 Congressmen have joined Rep. Buchanan in cosponsoring the bill, and hearings are expected in late May or early June.

It seems to us that it is time for all those who call themselves "Christian" to stand up and be counted. All it takes is a letter of protest addressed to the Embassy of the USSR, Washington, D.C.; a letter of encouragement to members of Congress to support HR 606; and-or circulating and signing petitions for the release of Georgi Vins sponsored by Prisoner's Release International, Box 808, Los Angeles, California 90053.

COMBUSTIBLE ENVIRONMENT

There are about a million building fires in the United States each year and 70 per cent of them are residential fires, according to the National Commission on Fire Prevention and Control. Residential fires also account for about 40 per cent of all property losses due to fire and 85 to 90 per cent of all fire deaths.

The National Bureau of Standards fact sheet shows that in the decade of 1962-1972, there were 12 fatalities a year in high- rise building fires. In the same 10-year period, there were 60,000 fatalities in residential fires.

Statistics like these indicate that the hazard of fire in highrise buildings is oversensationalized, says C. E. Peck, vice president of Owens- Corning Fiberglas. "Considering these fundamental facts," he asks, "why has so much effort been expended the past few years in an attempt to deal with the so-called high-rise fire problem, while very little has been done with respect to other, more basic fire safety problems?"

We live in a combustible environment, he points out. The principal hazard in large buildings lies with the contents, not the products used to build the buildings. In high-rise and other large buildings, the materials of construction make up only one per cent of all burnable materials; the other 99 per cent is primarily furniture, carpeting, paper and other working materials brought into the buildings.

More attention should be focussed on improving the fire- resistant properties of desks, curtains and carpeting, he agrees. But in a broader perspective, research should be directed to reducing the cost of our current technical solutions to fire safety. Smoke and heat detectors, for example, are very inexpensive compared with attempts to eliminate combustibles entirely.

Once we accept the fact that we live in a combustible environment, says Peck, we can then concentrate our efforts on developing realistic and economical fire suppression systems.

DR. FRANKENSTIN GOES TO CONGRESS

ONE of the ideas that has been around for some time, and has now been given wide publicity through the efforts of Ralph Nader, is the proposal for the federal chartering of industrial corporations. Some of the versions, including Mr. Nader's own, would practically make the corporations into public agencies. All of them share the objective of demolishing large parts of the existing structure of American industry, and remaking it nearer to (somebody's) heart's desire.

Last year, Congressman Stanton introduced a bill which he calls the Corporate Citizenship and Competition Act. This would establish a Federal Corporate Chartering Commission. The "principal" industrial corporations—meaning roughly the 100 largest industrial corporations—would have to apply to the commission for charters. Chartered corporations would have to submit regular reports giving elaborate detail of their operations by product lines, voting stock ownership, and debt structure.

However, the really startling part of Congressman Stanton's bill deals with "the reorganization of certain industries." The Chartering Commission would preside over a process of tearing apart the "principal" corporations in industries selected to be reorganized, and then restructuring those industries out of the pieces thus made available. The legislation would specifically direct that three industries—automobiles, petroleum and steel—be reorganized in this fashion, although other industries could later be added to the list.

In his explanation of the proposal, Congressman Stanton quotes language describing industrial corporations as "Frankenstein monsters," created by the individual states which issue their charters. It seems to me that there is a certain aptness in the analogy between the Frankenstein story and Congressman Stanton's proposals, although in quite a different sense.

You will remember the original story: Dr. Frankenstein was a talented surgeon who conceived the idea of creating a new creature which he would design himself rather than relying on natural biological processes to bring it into being. He prowled about the butcher shops and graveyards to get the bits and pieces he would need. When he finally put his new creature together, he was able to endow it with life of a sort, but we know what kind of monster it turned out to be.

Let us concede that Congressman Stanton, like Dr. Frankenstein, has the best of intentions. He simply wants to create business organizations that will be "better" than those which have grown up by natural processes in the real world. But we must tremble at the thought of the monstrous end result he might produce.

The congressman wants to go one long step further than the original Dr. Frankenstein. The latter was content to use pieces of already defunct beings as the raw materials for his new creation. Congressman Stanton would deliberately slaughter and dismember living, breathing business organizations, which have proved their ability to function in the real world, in the hope that we would be better off with new assemblages of the component pieces put together by the Federal Chartering Commission.

One must have grave doubts as to the commission's ability to endow the newly created business entities with life at all. And, if the commission could do so, might they not be sickly creatures which could survive only by constant injections of taxpayers' money? Or might they be monsters which would destroy those who had created them?

What is involved is not a trivial or peripheral part of the economic world. Congressman Stanton's target, the 100 largest industrial corporations, account for nearly half of all employment in the industrial sector. The congressman would say that this is undue concentration, but the fact is that the existing corporations do employ these people. The replacements coming off the commission's drawing boards might or might not provide the same number of jobs. The proposed legislation would be tampering with the livelihoods of some nine million people.

The boldness, or recklessness, of this undertaking is made even more astonishing by the rapidity with which it is supposed to be accomplished. Congressman Stanton points pridefully to the rigid timetable laid down in the legislation. A series of steps is mandated, each with a time limit allowing for no variations. The total time allowed, between enactment of the law and the going into effect of the final reorganization plan for the first industry, would be 525 days (unless Congress intervenes by affirmative action). In less than two years, an industry structure which had evolved in the real world during a century of our industrial history, would be dismantled and replaced.

In the economic world, as in the biological, the test of the viability of any organism is its actual survival and growth under real conditions. A wise man would proceed with caution in trying to improve upon natural selection in the business community. Instantaneous creation of a completely new set of business community. Instantantaneous creation of a completely new set of business entities is too large a task for fallible human beings.

The clergyman agreed but soon regretted his decision as he began to lose every hole. Upon seeing the minister change back into clerical garb at the end of the game, the man muttered apologetically, "I'm sorry, Reverend, but I wouldn't have taken your money if I had known you were a preacher. You see, I'm the club pro."

"That's quite all right," said the minister benignly. "To prove there are no hard feelings, you bring your parents around sometime and I'll be glad to marry them."

NO REAL CHOICE

Current gasoline availability has dulled many people's concern with the energy shortage. But the industries charged with providing tomorrow's energy supplies are stressing actions that must be taken at once in the fields of taxation, environmental legislation, prices and technology, if there is to be assurance of sufficient energy to maintain the security and well being of the United States.

Right now a critical issue is whether the Clean Air Act will be modified in time to permit utilization of the nation's vast coal reserves to prevent otherwise inevitable power shortages. The Clean Air Act calls for installation of certain pollution control devices called stack gas scrubbers to be installed by mid-1975. The problem is that scrubbers have yet to be perfected that can meet the deadline. As a major electric utility system states, "The 'stack gas scrubber' that some say is the answer to removing sulfur-dioxide, doesn't exist in a practical working sense. If such scrubbers did exist they couldn't be installed in time. If they did exist and could be installed, the resulting ground pollution would be worse than any potential air pollution. It is absolutely imperative that the Clean Air Act be amended. There is no other way....Unless the Clean Air Act is amended we will have a real energy crisis."

This utility system, like many others, is not attempting to evade the very real necessity of preserving a livable environment. It is seeking to blend achievable environmental goals with the imperative of producing the energy required to maintain a life-sustaining environment. It is calling for the utilization now of the one resource that can tide the nation over the energy gap of the next few years. That resource is coal, and as has been said before time and again, "America has more coal than the Middle East has oil. Let's dig it!"

UNSAVORY UNDERSIDE OF MEXICAN JUSTICE

Breaking into a Mexican jail at gunpoint to release its American prisoners is not a recommended way of improving international relations.

But the recent exploit by two modern-day "Zorros," as one wire service called them, who successfully sprang 11 other Americans and five Mexicans from an atrocious jail in Piedras Negras, just across the Mexico-Texas border, served at least briefly to expose the unsavory underside of the otherwise amicable relations Mexico and the United States enjoy.

All of the young Americans were being held for drug offenses. Mexico, of course, as a sovereign nation, certainly has every right to enforce its own laws against the narcotics traffic too many Americans are involved in.

How Mexico treats its prisoners may also be its own business. (One of the rescued Americans said that as many as 12 men were crowded into a single 8-by-9-foot cell in Piedras Negras.)

But what no nation has the right to do, under any written or unwritten law, is to confine people for months or years on end without trial or even formal indictment, as is reportedly the case with scores of other American citizens being held elsewhere in Mexico.

It is not only Americans charged with serious crimes who have been caught in the meshes of Mexico's corrupt legal system. Any number of tourists who have had the misfortune of being involved in automobile accidents or similar minor trouble in Mexico have returned with horror stories about the high-handedness and abusiveness and extortionist and confiscatory practices of Mexican authorities.

Neither the Mexican federal government nor the U.S. State Department seems to be able to do anything about these injustices. They have the lowest possible diplomatic priority, if, indeed, there is any official concern about them at all.

While the diplomatic wheels churn smoothly between Washington and Mexico City, it is the little people who get crushed in the cogs.

PETRO PRODUCTS IMPROVE LIFE IN MANY WAYS

When we think of using oil and natural gas, we think of transportation, heating and power. Yet every day we use them in many other ways.

For instance, more than one-half of our clothing is made from fibers derived from petrochemicals, 93 per cent of our carpeting is petrochemical in origin and 18 per cent of our blankets are made of the manmade fibers.

Then there's housing. The Manufacturing Chemists Association reminds us that all plywood is held together with plastic resins, as is the bulk of home insulation. Paints, floor tiles, circuitry, enamels, and faucets' washers are just a few more of the things that come from petrochemicals.

And most of us wouldn't want to try getting along without aspirin, soap and detergent—all petroleum derivatives.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Ford's Political Courage
with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON— We have watched President Ford closely since he picked the government reins off the floor nearly 22 months ago. We have often disagreed with his policies; occasionally, we have criticized his performance. But we have detected one characteristic that has gone largely unnoticed:

Gerald Ford has political courage.

This side of the President has been revealed behind closed White House doors. Ford made the decision, for example, to send Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to Africa on the eve of some crucial Southern primaries.

The President saw advance drafts of the statements Kissinger intended to make in Africa, supporting the rights of the black majority. Political advisers warned that the timing couldn't be worse, that the Kissinger tour would antagonize many Southern voters.

The President said the situation in Africa was too critical to wait and personally gave Kissinger the go-ahead. Subsequently, Ford lost to Ronald Reagan in the Texas, Georgia and Alabama primaries.

Yet the confidential minutes of a White House meeting on May 12 show the President had not relented. The takeover of Angola by Soviet-supported Cuban troops and guerrillas, he said, had made the situation "potentially very dangersous" for African moderates.

"Without some strong position by us," he declared, "Africa would become ripe for the picking." There had been "some criticism of the timing" of the Kissinger visit, he said, "but I can't hold foreign policy in abeyance for political reasons."

Ford has also dismayed his political advisers by calling for an increase in social security taxes and a five per cent ceiling on pay raises and pensions. Past presidents managed to postpone such unpopular moves until after the election But Ford told aides it was more important to bring the budget under control.

Even more astounding, he ordered the shutdown of four Air Force bases in states where he was courting votes -- Craig in Alabsma, Richards- Gebaur in Kansas, Webb in Texas and even Kincheloe in his home state of Michigan.

When Republican leaders pleaded with him to spare their pet projects, according to the confidential minutes of a May 5 meeting, the President replied bluntly: "There are definite limitations on what we can spend."

He demanded fiscal reforms before he would agree to bail New York City out of its financial crisis, despite a warning that the stringent measures could cost him votes.

He replied that the city would never have wound up on the financial rocks if past mayors had been willing to face the facts. "We cannot go on spending," he said, "without worrying about where the money is coming from."

Probably no presidential action was more unpopular than his attempt to make gas and oil more expensive. Although we criticized him for penalizing the poor, he felt this was the best way to hold down oil consumption and, thereby, to reduce U.S. dependence on Arab oil fields.

"This may not be good politics," he told his advisers, "but it is good for the country."

Ford also sought to curb electronic surveillance by the FBI and CIA in a move that brought praise from Sen. Ted Kennedy, D.-Mass., but criticism from some conservative Republicans.

Confidential minutes quote the President as responding: "It was a tough decision, without total unanimity, but I felt we had to move in the national interest."

Another time, his irrepressible former campaign manager, Howard "Bo" Callaway, suggested to White House aide Richard Cheney that the politically embarrassing trial of ex-Sen. Edward Gurney, R.-Fla., be held up until after the election.

Cheney had been around President Ford long enough to respond immediately: "We don't do that sort of thing in this Administration."

CUBANS IN AFRICA: The announcement from Angola that the new government will maintain a preferential relationship with Cuba means that the Kremlin will be calling the shots from behind the scenes.

For secret intelligence reports state flatly that the Soviets are subsidizing and directing the Cuban operations in Africa.

Cuban merchant ships, meanwhile, are "prominent" in the Angolan ports of Luanda and Lobito. Intelligence reports suggest they are moving military equipment from Luanda to Lobito as the Marxist MPLA faction continues to solidify its rule in southern Angola.

Apparently, Cuban troops are still conducting combat operations against the remaining, retreating UNITA guerrillas. The ruling MPLA forces, according to our intelligence sources, cannot yet direct successful military operations on their own.

The tiny Angolan air force is also manned by Cubans, the intelligence reports suggest. There have been a number of reports, too, that more Cuban technicians are arriving in Angola, perhaps accompanied by their families.

The best estimate is that more than 12,000 Cuban troops and 1,000 Cuban technicians are now stationed in Angola. Until recently, there had been few reports of friction between the Cubans and native Angolans.

But reports have now been received that Cuban soldiers have pulled out of Angola's Cabinda area after harrassment by the local populace.

UNCLE PHIL FOR PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON— My Uncle Phil who lives in Brooklyn has decided to run for President on the Democratic ticket.

"If I had known what it takes this year to be a presidential candidate," he told me, "I would have thrown my hat in the ring months ago."

"What makes you think you would have a chance?"

"Well, for one thing, I've never been to Washington in my life, and that seems to be the main attraction for the voters who are looking for a presidential candidate."

"That's one of the main prerequisites," I admitted. "But what are your other qualifications?"

"I have a great smile," he said. "You can see all my teeth when I smile, can't you?"

"Yes," I said, "but smiling isn't everything. Where do you stand on the issues?"

"What issues?"

"The issues of government."

"I don't stand anywhere on the issues. Ask your Aunt Molly. I have no idea what the issues are. That's why I'd make the perfect candidate. People don't want their presidential candidates to be clear on the issues. It only confuses them."

"Uncle Phil," I said, "the Presidency of the United States is one of the most important jobs in the world. You have to have some ideas on the economy, foreign policy, defense spending, unemployment and things like that."

"Why should I tip my hand now? The important thing is to say nothing about these things until you win the nomination. After that I'll deal with the issues."

"That's ridiculous," I told him. "Even if you don't get specific, we have to know what you're going to promise the people."

I'm not going to promise the people anything. They're sick and tired of being promised things that the government can't deliver. If anyone asks me what I'm going to do, I'll say, 'I don't know until I become President.' What the American people are looking for is honesty in their candidates."

"I can't argue with you on that point. But what about government? Are you for government or against it?"

"I'm against government interfering where it shouldn't interfere, but I'm not against government interfering if it has to. What I'm against are the bureaucrats in Washington who don't understand what the people in the country want."

"What about foreign affairs?"

"I'm against Henry Kissinger."

"But what are you for?"

"I'm for getting rid of Henry Kissinger."

"Everybody running for office seems to be against Henry Kissinger. Can't you be more specific?"

"Why should I be? Nobody else is."

"I guess you're right," I said. "What other qualifications do you hve that make you think you'represidential material?"

"I believe in God."

"I forgot about that one," I said. "What else?"

"I think I'm the only one who can stop Jimmy Carter."

"Why do you say that?"

"Because I'm a new face. The people are getting tired of seeing Carter on television all the time. They're looking for someone fresh that they haven't seen before. They're weary of all the old politics. Carter's been around too long."

"Maybe you're right," I said. "I guess you have nothing to lose. How does Aunt Molly feel about your getting in the race?"

"She's all for it, providing they give us Secret Service men. You can't imagine how dangerous it's getting in our neighborhood these days. She says even if I lose she'll feel safe shopping in Brooklyn for the next month anyway."

LET OUR PEOPLE GO

While U.S. State Department continues to follow its long-standing "head-in-the sand" policy toward the Soviet Union, the torture and terror of the Red dictatorship continues unabated. Reliable sources such as Alexander Solzenhitsyn report that since "detente" the situation for the victims of communism has worsened, resulting in "Stalinism without Stalin."

Rev. Vins, who is secretary for the Council of Evangelical Christians and Baptists in the Soviet Union (CCECB) — an organization representing several hundred thousand Iron Curtain Christians — was arrested in 1966 for demonstrating for religious liberty in Moscow. Sentenced to three years at hard labor in prison, he came out of the Stalin jails in 1969, broken in health, but not in spirit. So the KGB promptly framed a new case against him, and he went into hiding in the CCECB underground. He was apprenended in March, 1973 and held without trial until February, 1975, when it was announced that he had been convicted for the non-crime of "harming the interests of Societ citizens under the pretext of carrying out religious activity."

For this Rev. Vines was sentenced to five years at hard labor in prison to be followed by five years "exile" — i.e., comcentration camp. In addition, his wife and children were thrown out of their home and "liberated" from their personal possessions — beds, blankets, heavy clothing, cooking utensils, furniture, even their sewing machine — plunging them into dire poverty.

Congressman John H. Buchanan of Alabama has introduced a bill (HR 606) in Washington, which declares that it is the sense of the U.S. Congress "that the Soviet Government should immediately release Georgi Vins from imprisonment and allow him and other Christinas and other religious believers within its borders to worship God freely according to their own conscience, as the Soviet Union is committed to do by the provisions in its own constitution and by the provisions of the United Nations Covenant on Civil and Political Rights which the Soviet Union has ratified." So far, about 70 Congressmen have joined Rep. Buchanan in cosponsoring the bill, and hearings are expected in late May or early June.

It seems to us that it is time for all those who call themselves "Christian" to stand up and be counted. All it takes is a letter of protest addressed to the Embassy of the USSR, Washington, D.C.; a letter of encouragement to members of Congress to support HR 606; and-or circulating and signing petitions for the release of Georgi Vins sponsored by Prisoner's Release International, Box 808, Los Angeles, California 90053.

COMBUSTIBLE ENVIRONMENT

There are about a million building fires in the United States each year and 70 per cent of them are residential fires, according to the National Commission on Fire Prevention and Control. Residential fires also account for about 40 per cent of all property losses due to fire and 85 to 90 per cent of all fire deaths.

The National Bureau of Standards fact sheet shows that in the decade of 1962-1972, there were 12 fatalities a year in high- rise building fires. In the same 10-year period, there were 60,000 fatalities in residential fires.

Statistics like these indicate that the hazard of fire in highrise buildings is oversensationalized, says C. E. Peck, vice president of Owens- Corning Fiberglas. "Considering these fundamental facts," he asks, "why has so much effort been expended the past few years in an attempt to deal with the so-called high-rise fire problem, while very little has been done with respect to other, more basic fire safety problems?"

We live in a combustible environment, he points out. The principal hazard in large buildings lies with the contents, not the products used to build the buildings. In high-rise and other large buildings, the materials of construction make up only one per cent of all burnable materials; the other 99 per cent is primarily furniture, carpeting, paper and other working materials brought into the buildings.

More attention should be focussed on improving the fire- resistant properties of desks, curtains and carpeting, he agrees. But in a broader perspective, research should be directed to reducing the cost of our current technical solutions to fire safety. Smoke and heat detectors, for example, are very inexpensive compared with attempts to eliminate combustibles entirely.

Once we accept the fact that we live in a combustible environment, says Peck, we can then concentrate our efforts on developing realistic and economical fire suppression systems.

DR. FRANKENSTIN GOES TO CONGRESS

ONE of the ideas that has been around for some time, and has now been given wide publicity through the efforts of Ralph Nader, is the proposal for the federal chartering of industrial corporations. Some of the versions, including Mr. Nader's own, would practically make the corporations into public agencies. All of them share the objective of demolishing large parts of the existing structure of American industry, and remaking it nearer to (somebody's) heart's desire.

Last year, Congressman Stanton introduced a bill which he calls the Corporate Citizenship and Competition Act. This would establish a Federal Corporate Chartering Commission. The "principal" industrial corporations—meaning roughly the 100 largest industrial corporations—would have to apply to the commission for charters. Chartered corporations would have to submit regular reports giving elaborate detail of their operations by product lines, voting stock ownership, and debt structure.

However, the really startling part of Congressman Stanton's bill deals with "the reorganization of certain industries." The Chartering Commission would preside over a process of tearing apart the "principal" corporations in industries selected to be reorganized, and then restructuring those industries out of the pieces thus made available. The legislation would specifically direct that three industries—automobiles, petroleum and steel—be reorganized in this fashion, although other industries could later be added to the list.

In his explanation of the proposal, Congressman Stanton quotes language describing industrial corporations as "Frankenstein monsters," created by the individual states which issue their charters. It seems to me that there is a certain aptness in the analogy between the Frankenstein story and Congressman Stanton's proposals, although in quite a different sense.

You will remember the original story: Dr. Frankenstein was a talented surgeon who conceived the idea of creating a new creature which he would design himself rather than relying on natural biological processes to bring it into being. He prowled about the butcher shops and graveyards to get the bits and pieces he would need. When he finally put his new creature together, he was able to endow it with life of a sort, but we know what kind of monster it turned out to be.

Let us concede that Congressman Stanton, like Dr. Frankenstein, has the best of intentions. He simply wants to create business organizations that will be "better" than those which have grown up by natural processes in the real world. But we must tremble at the thought of the monstrous end result he might produce.

The congressman wants to go one long step further than the original Dr. Frankenstein. The latter was content to use pieces of already defunct beings as the raw materials for his new creation. Congressman Stanton would deliberately slaughter and dismember living, breathing business organizations, which have proved their ability to function in the real world, in the hope that we would be better off with new assemblages of the component pieces put together by the Federal Chartering Commission.

One must have grave doubts as to the commission's ability to endow the newly created business entities with life at all. And, if the commission could do so, might they not be sickly creatures which could survive only by constant injections of taxpayers' money? Or might they be monsters which would destroy those who had created them?

What is involved is not a trivial or peripheral part of the economic world. Congressman Stanton's target, the 100 largest industrial corporations, account for nearly half of all employment in the industrial sector. The congressman would say that this is undue concentration, but the fact is that the existing corporations do employ these people. The replacements coming off the commission's drawing boards might or might not provide the same number of jobs. The proposed legislation would be tampering with the livelihoods of some nine million people.

The boldness, or recklessness, of this undertaking is made even more astonishing by the rapidity with which it is supposed to be accomplished. Congressman Stanton points pridefully to the rigid timetable laid down in the legislation. A series of steps is mandated, each with a time limit allowing for no variations. The total time allowed, between enactment of the law and the going into effect of the final reorganization plan for the first industry, would be 525 days (unless Congress intervenes by affirmative action). In less than two years, an industry structure which had evolved in the real world during a century of our industrial history, would be dismantled and replaced.

In the economic world, as in the biological, the test of the viability of any organism is its actual survival and growth under real conditions. A wise man would proceed with caution in trying to improve upon natural selection in the business community. Instantaneous creation of a completely new set of business community. Instantantaneous creation of a completely new set of business entities is too large a task for fallible human beings.

Gerald Ford has political courage.

This side of the President has been revealed behind closed White House doors. Ford made the decision, for example, to send Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to Africa on the eve of some crucial Southern primaries.

The President saw advance drafts of the statements Kissinger intended to make in Africa, supporting the rights of the black majority. Political advisers warned that the timing couldn't be worse, that the Kissinger tour would antagonize many Southern voters.

The President said the situation in Africa was too critical to wait and personally gave Kissinger the go-ahead. Subsequently, Ford lost to Ronald Reagan in the Texas, Georgia and Alabama primaries.

Yet the confidential minutes of a White House meeting on May 12 show the President had not relented. The takeover of Angola by Soviet-supported Cuban troops and guerrillas, he said, had made the situation "potentially very dangersous" for African moderates.

"Without some strong position by us," he declared, "Africa would become ripe for the picking." There had been "some criticism of the timing" of the Kissinger visit, he said, "but I can't hold foreign policy in abeyance for political reasons."

Ford has also dismayed his political advisers by calling for an increase in social security taxes and a five per cent ceiling on pay raises and pensions. Past presidents managed to postpone such unpopular moves until after the election But Ford told aides it was more important to bring the budget under control.

Even more astounding, he ordered the shutdown of four Air Force bases in states where he was courting votes -- Craig in Alabsma, Richards- Gebaur in Kansas, Webb in Texas and even Kincheloe in his home state of Michigan.

When Republican leaders pleaded with him to spare their pet projects, according to the confidential minutes of a May 5 meeting, the President replied bluntly: "There are definite limitations on what we can spend."

He demanded fiscal reforms before he would agree to bail New York City out of its financial crisis, despite a warning that the stringent measures could cost him votes.

He replied that the city would never have wound up on the financial rocks if past mayors had been willing to face the facts. "We cannot go on spending," he said, "without worrying about where the money is coming from."

Probably no presidential action was more unpopular than his attempt to make gas and oil more expensive. Although we criticized him for penalizing the poor, he felt this was the best way to hold down oil consumption and, thereby, to reduce U.S. dependence on Arab oil fields.

"This may not be good politics," he told his advisers, "but it is good for the country."

Ford also sought to curb electronic surveillance by the FBI and CIA in a move that brought praise from Sen. Ted Kennedy, D.-Mass., but criticism from some conservative Republicans.

Confidential minutes quote the President as responding: "It was a tough decision, without total unanimity, but I felt we had to move in the national interest."

Another time, his irrepressible former campaign manager, Howard "Bo" Callaway, suggested to White House aide Richard Cheney that the politically embarrassing trial of ex-Sen. Edward Gurney, R.-Fla., be held up until after the election.

Cheney had been around President Ford long enough to respond immediately: "We don't do that sort of thing in this Administration."

CUBANS IN AFRICA: The announcement from Angola that the new government will maintain a preferential relationship with Cuba means that the Kremlin will be calling the shots from behind the scenes.

For secret intelligence reports state flatly that the Soviets are subsidizing and directing the Cuban operations in Africa.

Cuban merchant ships, meanwhile, are "prominent" in the Angolan ports of Luanda and Lobito. Intelligence reports suggest they are moving military equipment from Luanda to Lobito as the Marxist MPLA faction continues to solidify its rule in southern Angola.

Apparently, Cuban troops are still conducting combat operations against the remaining, retreating UNITA guerrillas. The ruling MPLA forces, according to our intelligence sources, cannot yet direct successful military operations on their own.

The tiny Angolan air force is also manned by Cubans, the intelligence reports suggest. There have been a number of reports, too, that more Cuban technicians are arriving in Angola, perhaps accompanied by their families.

The best estimate is that more than 12,000 Cuban troops and 1,000 Cuban technicians are now stationed in Angola. Until recently, there had been few reports of friction between the Cubans and native Angolans.

But reports have now been received that Cuban soldiers have pulled out of Angola's Cabinda area after harrassment by the local populace.

UNCLE PHIL FOR PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON— My Uncle Phil who lives in Brooklyn has decided to run for President on the Democratic ticket.

"If I had known what it takes this year to be a presidential candidate," he told me, "I would have thrown my hat in the ring months ago."

"What makes you think you would have a chance?"

"Well, for one thing, I've never been to Washington in my life, and that seems to be the main attraction for the voters who are looking for a presidential candidate."

"That's one of the main prerequisites," I admitted. "But what are your other qualifications?"

"I have a great smile," he said. "You can see all my teeth when I smile, can't you?"

"Yes," I said, "but smiling isn't everything. Where do you stand on the issues?"

"What issues?"

"The issues of government."

"I don't stand anywhere on the issues. Ask your Aunt Molly. I have no idea what the issues are. That's why I'd make the perfect candidate. People don't want their presidential candidates to be clear on the issues. It only confuses them."

"Uncle Phil," I said, "the Presidency of the United States is one of the most important jobs in the world. You have to have some ideas on the economy, foreign policy, defense spending, unemployment and things like that."

"Why should I tip my hand now? The important thing is to say nothing about these things until you win the nomination. After that I'll deal with the issues."

"That's ridiculous," I told him. "Even if you don't get specific, we have to know what you're going to promise the people."

I'm not going to promise the people anything. They're sick and tired of being promised things that the government can't deliver. If anyone asks me what I'm going to do, I'll say, 'I don't know until I become President.' What the American people are looking for is honesty in their candidates."

"I can't argue with you on that point. But what about government? Are you for government or against it?"

"I'm against government interfering where it shouldn't interfere, but I'm not against government interfering if it has to. What I'm against are the bureaucrats in Washington who don't understand what the people in the country want."

"What about foreign affairs?"

"I'm against Henry Kissinger."

"But what are you for?"

"I'm for getting rid of Henry Kissinger."

"Everybody running for office seems to be against Henry Kissinger. Can't you be more specific?"

"Why should I be? Nobody else is."

"I guess you're right," I said. "What other qualifications do you hve that make you think you'represidential material?"

"I believe in God."

"I forgot about that one," I said. "What else?"

"I think I'm the only one who can stop Jimmy Carter."

"Why do you say that?"

"Because I'm a new face. The people are getting tired of seeing Carter on television all the time. They're looking for someone fresh that they haven't seen before. They're weary of all the old politics. Carter's been around too long."

"Maybe you're right," I said. "I guess you have nothing to lose. How does Aunt Molly feel about your getting in the race?"

"She's all for it, providing they give us Secret Service men. You can't imagine how dangerous it's getting in our neighborhood these days. She says even if I lose she'll feel safe shopping in Brooklyn for the next month anyway."

DEAR POLLY — After wrapping gifts there is usually a piece of gift wrap left that is too small to wrap another package but is large enough to write a letter on the plain side. This makes a colorful letter when folded and is another way tc use up something that would be thrown away. —MRS.E.K.

DEAR POLLY — I save money by no longer buying cotton, but save all the cotton that comes in jars of medicine, vitamins, etc. from the drug store. —JOSEPHINE.

DEAR POLLY — Crib sheets are so expensive, so I save money by making my own. I bought a full sized striped sheet on sale for a dollar and a half and this made four nice crib sheets. I put elastic at the corners so the sheets do not slide when put on the mattress.

All old plastic shower curtains are saved to make garment bags, tablecloths, mattress, washer and dryer covers. —CATHERINE.

DEAR POLLY — If you have a new baby or are expecting one, a diaper pail is a "must" but instead of having to buy one use a small five gallon plastic garbage can. It is stronger and will last longer, and also when you have no further need for a diaper pail it can be used for a small outdoor toy box. The lid will keep the toys clean and it is almost unbreakable. —RONALD.

Prices up this week

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — About two-thirds of all the commodities checked by the Missouri Farm Bureau's shoppers guide increased in price this week.

Leading the upswing was a 12-cent-per-pound increase in the price of pork steak and a seven cent boost for center cut pork chops.

Blade roast, arm roast, rib steak and sirloin steak all increased a couple of pennies, with round steak providing a welcome contrast by dropping 18 cents per pound to a statewide average of $1.39 per pound.

Ground beef was down two cents to 80 cents per pound.

Poultry and dairy products also were up. The price of whole fryers went up three cents to 54 cents per pound. Milk was up three cents for a gallon of 2 per cent to $1.48. Grade A large eggs averaged 77 cents a dozen, up two cents.

Potatoes were up eight cents to $1.74 for a 10-pound bag.

Develop your reading skills

Peggy Thompson of St. Louis is the instructor for the short course in Reading Development scheduled to begin June 15 from 7 to 9 p.m. in Building G of Sikeston High School, 200 Pine St.

This course is designed for adults and college and high school students who are interested in improving their reading techniques. Increased reading rate, comprehension, and understanding of reading processes are goals of the course. Scientifically designed visual aids, frequent testing, and individual help from the instructor combine to achieve these objectives. Previous class members show excellent improvement in reading rate and comprehension.

Thompson's expertise is in the discipline of arts and sciences with a concentrated study in English, theology, history, and education. She has been teaching "reading development" at the University of Missouri-St. Louis since 1969. In addition to having conducted over 50 programs for the UMSL Extension Division, she has taught many reading courses for other educational institutions and industries. She has been a full-time instructor in the St. Louis Archdiocesan Catholic School System since 1968.

Enroll early — the course is limited to 35 persons with June 13 as deadline. Registration forms are available in local extension centers, at the Vocational School in Sikeston, or by contacting Kathryn Kinnard, continuing education specialist, P. O. Box 160, Portageville, phone 379-5431.

Use eggs of high quality when you are serving them fried. Eggs of inferior quality will spread out over the pan instead of having the whites make compact rounds and the yolks stand up high and firm.

Ann Landers

Doctor's wife needs Al-Anon

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a well-known, highly respected physician in this city of 100,000. He doesn't drink when on call, but when he's "relaxing" it's a serious problem. If it weren't for the children I would leave him. Believe me, I've given it serious consideration but decided, for a variety of reasons, to stay and make the best of it.

But how do I cope, Ann? My resentment is affecting my entire outlook on life. It has reached the point where the smell of liquor on his breath makes me want to throw up.

I have read about Al-Anon in your column and would like to join. When I told my husband, he said, "I dare you to show your face at one of those meetings. It would be the talk of the town."

Please tell me what to do, Ann. I am – A Very Unhappy Woman

Dear Woman: Don't let him bully you. Go to the next Al-Anon meeting -- and I hope it's tomorrow.

If your husband doesn't want to seek help for himself, that's his business, but he has no right to deny you the benefits of Al-Anon.

As for "people talking," it's most unlikely. The anonymity of the members is rarely violated. And if someone does talk, what could he say? Showing up at an Al-Anon meeting is infinitely less damaging than a doctor who shows up ANYPLACE – drunk.

Dear Ann Landers: Something has been bugging me for a long time and I don't know who to complain to, so you're it.

I've seen and heard the word "nymphomaniac" hundreds of times. It's a well-known fact that being obsessed with sex is a human problem, not an illness peculiar to women. In fact I'll bet more males are sex crazy than females. Yet there is no word for THEM. Do you think perhaps Daniel Webster was a woman-hater?–Inquiry From Little Rock

Dear Rock: So far as I know Dan had nothing against girls, and your attack is unjustified. There IS a word for males who have an insatiable appetite for sex. They are called "satyrs."

Dear Ann Landers: When I was divorced from my husband I was faced with the problem of my kids wanting to sleep with Mama. I had read in your column that it should never be allowed so I made up my nind to say "NO" and not let the kids beat me down. It was a good decision. After a few weeks of nagging they quit and I've never had any trouble with my children getting "lonesome" at night.

A very close friend (also divorced) told me yesterday she thinks it's nice that her 11-year-old daughter (who has slept with her since the divorce) takes her six-year-old brother into her bed when Mama isn't home. The child is afraid to sleep by herself and must have company.

I told my friend it's a lousy idea but she doesn't believe me. She has to hear it from an authority. Please say it again. – Want To Help

Dear W.T.H.: As a mother who has lived through the experience, you are a better authority than I am. I hope your friend (and other mothers who are faced with this decision) will keep the kids out of thier beds. There's nothing like eliminating a problem before it begins. P.S. A six-year-old boy should not be in bed with his 11-year-old sister.

Vaginal problems rise with temperatures

Vaginal problems tend to rise along with the temperature, two New Jersey gynecologists have observed. Drs. S. A. Wilchins and G. E. Laubach have found that perspiration and tight-fitting nylon underwear contribute to vaginal itching, and sometimes, to infection. Swimming pools can also harbor micro-organisms that contribute to the problem.

To help keep free of infection, the physicians suggest wearing cotton underwear. Some nylon panties and pantyhose are available with a cotton crotch.

More frequent bathing is usually helpful, and for those who find douching particularly soothing in warm weather, the physicians suggest the use of an alkaline product which they have found to be less irritating than acid preparations or those artificially perfumed. For persistent itching, or when there is a suspicion of infection, they advise that a doctor be consulted.

New-look Ali kayoes Dunn in fifth after five knockdowns

MUNICH (AP) — The knockout came as promised following the new svelte look, the dancing and the mocking Frankenstein lockstep. But Muhammad Ali has changed, even slipped, and he says so in his own elliptical way.

Ali had just knocked down Richard Dunn five times to score a fifth-round knockout at the stroke of 4 a.m. in Munich Tuesday, and he had gotten through the ritual talk of greatness, amazement, and miracles.

Then he got around to saying what seemed increasingly evident. "I've got just enough to carry me through the year and destroy Norton. Then I'm going to retire."

Frankly, he said, "I'm nowhere what I was a while ago."

There was the Ali of the right-hand lead and left hook who sent the red-haired Briton to the canvas three times in the fourth round and twice in the fifth, before the fight was over with 55 seconds to go to the bell. There was the Ali who signaled that Dunn's time had come at the start of the final round, and the Ali who walked wooden-legged toward the Englishman, his arms stretched out in front of him like a Frankenstein monster.

Yet Ali was changed — "a totally different Ali," he said himself — a harder puncher than before, perhaps, but a fighter increasingly rooted in the canvas.

It was also an Ali who frequently crossed his legs awkardly during the first three rounds, took a series of stiff right jabs from the left-handed Englishman in the third round and seemed markedly slower and less mobile than the fighter who floated like a butterfly and stung like a bee.

"He's missing; the reflexes have gone back; he should retire," said Duane Bobick after he saw Ali in training. Bobick won his 36th-straight fight in the Olympiahalle, just before Ali's victory, knocking out Bunny Johnson of England.

But Ali didn't seem to be paying any immediate attention. He insisted on talking about new trick karate punches and promised to jog five miles Tuesday, preparing for an exhibition in Tokyo next month and the fight against Ken Norton in Yankee Stadium next September which should bring him $9 million.

Through Dunn, Ali showed that he could erase the memory of the fat, sluggish 34 year old who nearly lost a month ago against Jimmy Young, a fighter who had knocked Dunn out in 1974.

The champion weighed 220 pounds, down 10 from the Young fight, and his body had some of its old muscle tone. Even so, Ali was breathing hard after the first round, and he found Dunn a much tougher fighter than he imagined.

"He was right in on me, making me work and do my best," Ali said of the Englishman. "I did the rope-a-dope a couple of times, and it came in real handy, because it saved me some work.

"Dunn was much better than I thought he was, but at the pace we were going I knew he'd fade out after 10 or 11. I'm still 34, finished and washed up and over the hill. He's 31, and he had a little more pep."

Ali acknowledged that Dunn had hurt him twice, and said he considered the Englishman, who dreamed he would beat the champion in the eighth round, merited a return match.

Dunn said at first in the ring that he thought the decision of the German referee to stop the fight was too quick, but with reflection the former construction worker said in his dressing room, "I wouldn't challenge the ref's decision. He's the boss, and I'm only the foreman, but I thought it could have gone on a bit."

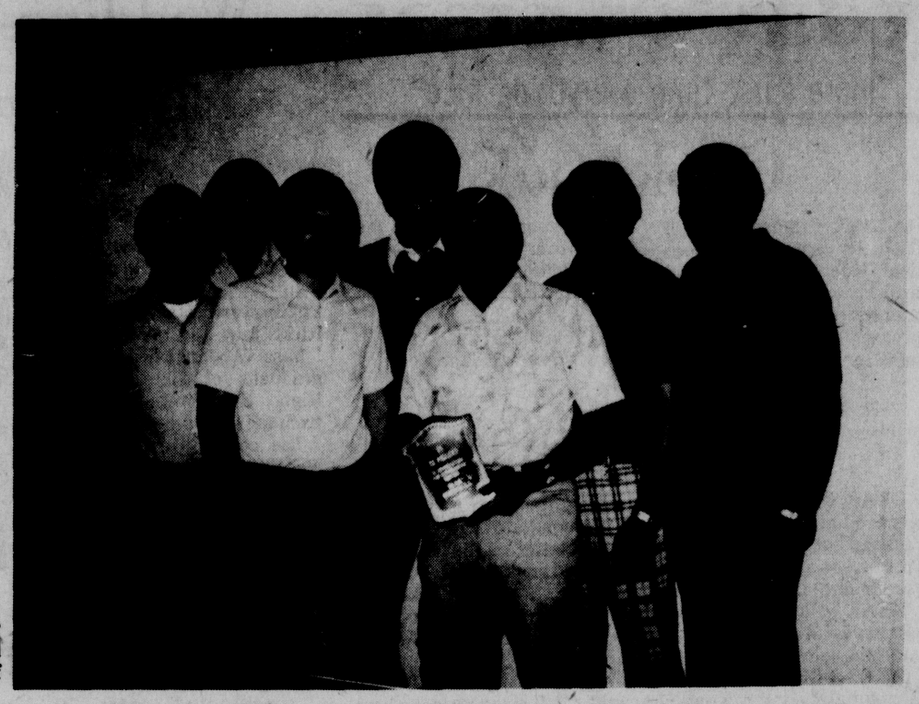

After a disastrous prefight promotion in which the fight was threatened with cancellation because of a shortfall by the German promoters in paying Ali's purse, the Munich Olympiahalle had about three-quarters of its 12,500 seats filled for the bout.

Ali, who shelled out $100,000 to buy 2,000 seats for American servicemen, got a message of thanks from President Ford for the gesture, but it wasn't clear how much Ali's help meant to the promoters.

Bob Arum, the American copromoter who handled U.S televison rights, said he believed that a large part of the crowd came on free tickets or cut-rate tickets sold at the last minute.

Arum estimated two days ago that the German promoters would lose close to a half million dollars, but Rudolfo Sabbatini, a respected matchmaker from Rome, said he understood the loss could be in excess of $600,000.

Arum said the 160,000-mark ($60,000) rent for the Olympiahalle had been paid only 10 hours before the championship and that there was a measure of doubt until the last minute about whether it would come off.

Ed Pollard, retiring secretary of the Sikeston Little League, was honored last Friday night with a surprise ice cream social at the home of Jim and Dixie Wilson. Pollard, who has been a participant of the Little League program for many years, is being transferred to Willow Springs by the Highway department. Heisler places third Marshall Heisler of Sikeston placed third in Missouri State Federation Fishing Competition competing with 150 of the best cast-for-cash fisherman in Missouri.

Heisler, a local contractor, and five members of the Bootheel Bass Busters Club represented Sikeston at the annual State Federation Tournament held at Stockton Lake north of Springfield, Missouri.

The two day elimination tournament was held to determine who of Missouri top bassmen will represent the state in National competition. Heisler's 31 lbs. of fish was caught on spinner baits and plastic worms placed him third to Evon "Catfish" Austins' 40 lbs. 4 oz. and Charlie Campbell's 31 lbs. 12 oz. of Forsyth. Both are professional bass competitors.

Other members representing the Sikeston team were Ed Berry, Lee Marks, Travis Garrett, Carl Barnett, Jesse Yarbrough and Sonny Cowell. The team finished in 10th place in overall competition.

Winter temperatures in Antarctica can drop as low as 127 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

Stadium costs skyrocket

Bowled Over Part I: The Price Tag

EDITOR'S NOTE — The sports stadiums that have sprung up across the United States in the past decade are providing plush accommodations for fans, but are they worth the price? In the first part of a two-part series, The Associated Press examines cost overruns in constructing these modern Coloseums.

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
AP Business Writer

The super stadiums of big time sports in America are raising voices and tempers again this spring.

In Seattle, the Kingdome was dedicated more than a year late with a price tag $27 million over the original estimate.

In New York, the facelifted Yankee Stadium was unveiled, with cost estimates ranging up to $50 million above initial projections.

And in New Orleans, state officials learned that the Louisiana Superdome would require $4 million more than appropriated for expenses in its first eight months of operation.

"I've had it up to my ears," said Kevin Reilly, a state legislator and member of the Superdome's commission.

Reilly is chairman of the appropriations committee of the Louisiana House of Representatives, which will be asked this month to provide $23.1 million for operating costs and debt payments for the stadium over the next year.

Heated debate is expected. Some legislators say the Superdome's public support extends only 30 miles from its home in New Orleans.

"Public projects tend to generate controversy in proportion to their size and visibility," the Arthur D. Little management consulting firm of Boston said this month in its summary report on the Superdome's management.

"Because the Superdome is very large and very visible, it was almost a foregone conclusion that it would have been controversial, even if its start-up had been smooth and its financial performance promising."

Start-up was anything but smooth.

Promoters of what was billed as the world's largest indoor stadium experienced what the builders of other stadiums were soon to encounter: cost estimates rendered useless by inflation and design changes, the opening delayed by bad weather and labor troubles and official probes of misconduct.

The Superdome started a decade ago when voters approved a $34 million rival to Houston's Astrodome. Later, when the project began, it was necessary to issue $137.7 million in bonds to finance it.

Adding tax and investment revenues, the cost rose to $163.3 million. And other estimates have gone as high as $178.3 million, depending on what it counted and who does the counting.

The King County Domed Stadium in Seattle was approved by voters in 1968 and $40 million in bonds were issued in 1972. The cost later jumped to $67 million.

The original cost estimate in 1964 for Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia was $25 million. When construction started in 1967, the city had to float a $42.7 million bond issue.

The cost projection in 1971 for the Yankee Stadium facelifting was $24 million. The official price tag later was set at about $45 milion.

But estimates of the final cost have ranged between $75 million and $100 million.

The rising costs of labor and building materials were two reasons the stadiums ended up costing far more than projected.

Officials in Seattle say construction costs soared 59 per cent after the project was bid in 1972.

In San Francisco, an expansion of Candlestick Park, completed in 1972, cost $24 million. Construction of the stadium itself 12 years earlier had cost $15 million.

Design changes along the way added to the cost of the Harry S. Truman Sports Complex in Kansas City. The complex, completed in 1973, has a baseball stadium for the Royals and a football stadium for the Chiefs.

Jackson County voters first approved $43 million in bonds in 1967. Later, it was necessary to issue an additional $13 million. The Chiefs and Royals wanted such items as computerized scoreboards, fancy viewing and dining clubs, and a spectacular water fountain.

The Chiefs ended up underwriting $4.5 million of the bonds, and it is estimated that they put $10 million of their own money into the project. The Royals spent an estimated $9 million of their money.

Four elevators left out of original blueprints for the Superdome were later found to be necessary and contributed $8.2 million to the cost overrun.

And a grand jury investigating cost overruns in the construction of Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia said it had evidence of "extortion and bribery and a conspiracy to cheat and defraud" the city.

The jury said it found delays in construction give taxpayers "less than their money's worth and result in the stadium being built at substantial variance from the plans and specifications."

The jury said changes in structural supports cost an extra $150,000 and that hydrants that should have cost $72,000 were left out of original plans. They cost $211,000 when finally installed.

No indictments resulted from the jury's investigation, and no indictments have been returned in New Orleans, where a special legislative committee and four grand juries asked questions about the Superdome.

New-look Ali kayoes Dunn in fifth after five knockdowns

MUNICH (AP) — The knockout came as promised following the new svelte look, the dancing and the mocking Frankenstein lockstep. But Muhammad Ali has changed, even slipped, and he says so in his own elliptical way.

Ali had just knocked down Richard Dunn five times to score a fifth-round knockout at the stroke of 4 a.m. in Munich Tuesday, and he had gotten through the ritual talk of greatness, amazement, and miracles.

Then he got around to saying what seemed increasingly evident. "I've got just enough to carry me through the year and destroy Norton. Then I'm going to retire."

Frankly, he said, "I'm nowhere what I was a while ago."

There was the Ali of the right-hand lead and left hook who sent the red-haired Briton to the canvas three times in the fourth round and twice in the fifth, before the fight was over with 55 seconds to go to the bell. There was the Ali who signaled that Dunn's time had come at the start of the final round, and the Ali who walked wooden-legged toward the Englishman, his arms stretched out in front of him like a Frankenstein monster.

Police expect more arrests soon in Vonavena slaying

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Authorities say more arrests are expected "in the near future" in the brothel slaying of Argentine heavyweight boxer Oscar Bonavena.

A spokesman from the Nevada Division of Investigation and Narcotics also said late Monday that Cheryl Ann Rebideaux, who recently married Bonavena in a civil ceremony here, had been located at her mother's home in Sparks, Nev.

But the spokesman said she has refused to answer questions on the advice of her attorney.

The marriage was annulled when it was found that Bonavena had a wife in Buenos Aires.

Illmo-Scott City's Steve Hanschen took home the "gold" Saturday night during the school's annual athletic awards banquet. Hanschen, who has been a star athlete in most sports at I-SC throughout his high school career, received awards for being most valuable player in football and basketball, having the best freethrow percentage, having the most points in a track season, a school record setting 126,being named as the best back in football, and setting a school record in the 100 yard dash of 10.0 sec. Hanschen recently received a full scholarship to Arkansas State, where coaches say he is a likely starter early in his career.

JBR opener tonight

Summer baseball in the city of Sikeston gets underway tonight at the Sikeston Recreational Complex as the Junior Babe Ruth League kicks off its 1976 season.

The season is starting a week early this year because of the unusually early scheduling of the district Junior Babe Ruth Tournament.

Tonight's action pits Home Materials against the Bank of Sikeston at 6:30, followed by Davis and Bird against Elliot-Newton at 8:30.

Little League and Senior Babe Ruth gets underway next week. The National, American and Musial Leagues all play next Tuesday night at the complex, while Senior Babe Ruth League action will begin next Wednesday evening at VFW Stadium. The Senior Babe Ruth League will feature five teams this year, commissioner Bob Taylor said.

Eagles & Marks are fast pitch winners

Mike Garner's two-run double in the bottom of the seventh inning capped a four-run rally that enabled the Eagles to send their game against Security National Bank into extra innings and later win it 8-7 in ten innings.

Other action in the Sikeston Fast Pitch Softball League saw Marks Food Mart defeat the Bank of Siketon 11-5.

John Chessor went all the way in the marathon for the Eagles to pick up the victory on the mound. Sonny Heacox was the loser for Security National Bank.

The score remained tied until the bottom of the tenth, when the Eagles pushed across a run to win the game.

Rick Burnett and Lindsey Jackson had three hits apiece in the nightcap to pace Marks Food Mart to their victory. Bob Stinnett got the win, while Tom Masterson suffered the loss.

Celtic defense improves

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics, long known for their racehorse offense, now are gaining a reputation for their defensive prowess.

The Celtics, leading the Phoenix Suns 1-0 in their nationally televised best-of-seven National Basketball Association championship series and seeking their 13th league title since 1957, are in that position more because of their defense than their offense.

In 13 playoff games so far this season — six each against Buffalo and Cleveland, and Sunday's 98-87 victory over Phoenix — they have held the opposition under 100 points 10 times and under 90 in five games. Their average yield has been 96.1 points per game.

That is well below the Celtics' season average of 103.9 — sixth best in the league — and also below the Chicago Bulls' figure of 98.8, lowest in the NBA.

Meanwhile, Boston's usually potent offense, which averaged 106.2 points during the regular season, has sputtered, mainly due to injuries to fast-break leader John Havlicek. In their last six playoff games, the Celtics have not reached the 100-point mark, but they have won four of them. Their over-all scoring average for 13 playoff games is 99.3.

Recently, the Celtics, who prefer to run, have been forced to play a deliberate, patterned offense.

"We're not a pattern, set-up basketball team," said Coach Tom Heinsohn. "If we could run and fast break, I'd feel a lot better. But the fact is that we don't have the people who can run. Havlicek has that injury (torn muscles in his left foot) and (Don) Nelson and (Steve) Kuberski haven't got good speed. The fact that we can't run right now worries me, because Phoenix is a real good ball club."

The Celtics' running game could be more accelerated during Thursday night's second game at the Boston Garden, because Havlicek might be available for full-time duty.

Although he did not start in the series opener, he played 40 minutes, scored 16 points, grabbed six rebounds and had six assists. And most importantly, he said he felt little pain in the foot afterward.

In addition to Havlicek, the Celtics are hoping that two other regular starters, guard Charlie Scott and center Dave Cowens, regain top physical health during the three-day layoff between Games One and Two.

Saints schedule practice

The Sikeston Saints baseball team announces a full team practice Tuesday afternoon at 6:00 p. m., or at the conclusion of high school practice in the V. F. W. stadium.

Coach Dale Forbis urges all team members to attend or inform him (at 471-4420) of any conflicting activities they may have planned.

"There are several players we haven't seen in some time. Three, in particular missed the last practice and game. We must know everyone's intentions since the team roster must be turned in June 14."

If Forbis can't be contacted, call Tom Masterson at 471-0222 or Jim Saulter at 471-0067.

"We're in an odd situation," said Forbis, "where we don't have a phone number on some of our players. This is our own fault, but we still wan to make sure every uniform is filled at every game possible."

Police expect more arrests soon in Vonavena slaying

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Authorities say more arrests are expected "in the near future" in the brothel slaying of Argentine heavyweight boxer Oscar Bonavena.

A spokesman from the Nevada Division of Investigation and Narcotics also said late Monday that Cheryl Ann Rebideaux, who recently married Bonavena in a civil ceremony here, had been located at her mother's home in Sparks, Nev.

But the spokesman said she has refused to answer questions on the advice of her attorney.

The marriage was annulled when it was found that Bonavena had a wife in Buenos Aires.

Storey County Sheriff Robert DelCarlo identified Miss Rebideaux, 20, as a former employe at Mustang Ranch, where Bonavena was killed Saturday by a single rifle shot.

A brothel guard, Willard Ross Brymer, 31, of Sun Valley, Nev., was booked for investigation of homicide.

A state investigator said that as the result of cooeperation of the Argentine federal police and the Los Angeles medical examiner's office "we anticipate other arrests in the very near future,"

He did not elaborate.

In Virginia City, Storey County Dist. Atty. Virgil Bucchianeri said he is awaiting full results of an autopsy and probe by tate and county authorities before deciding whether Brymer will be charged formally with murder.

THE RYATTS by Jack Elrod

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, May 25, the 146th day of 1976. There are 220 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1787, delegates to the Constitutional Convention met in Independence Hall in Philadelphia to frame the U.S. Constitution.

On this date:

In 1803, the American poet and philosopher, Ralph Waldo Emerson, was born in Boston.

In 1836, Representative John Quincy Adams opposed the annexation of Texas in a speech in the House. He cautioned that the move might bring on war with Mexico.

In 1862, Confederate troops under General Stonewall Jackson defeated a Union force in the Civil War Battle of Winchester, Va.

In 1961, President John Kennedy asked the nation to strive to send Americans to the moon "before this decade is out."

In 1967, the U.S. State Department ordered wives and children of Aoerican officials to leave Egypt and Israel because of the danger of war.

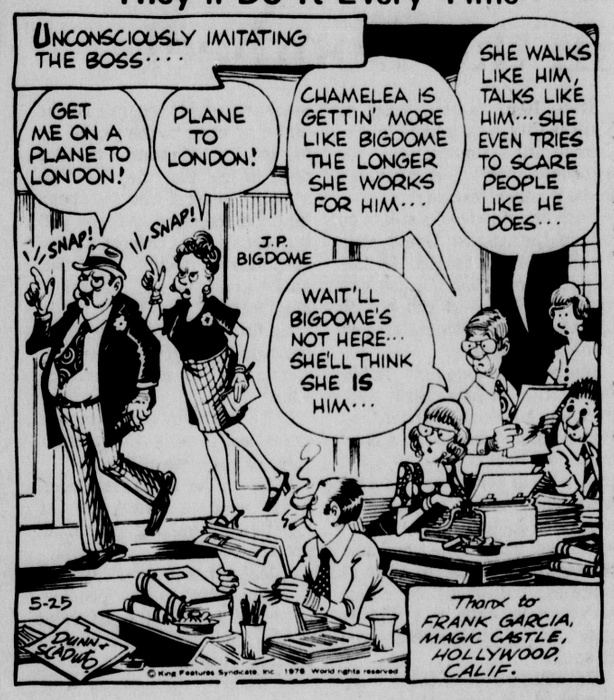

In 1974, President Richard Nixon said in a nationwide radio address he must defend the office of the Presidency by refusing to turn over evidence sought in two Watergate criminal cases.

Ten years ago: A Kansas attorney, William Thompson, became the first layman in 83 years to head the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

Five years ago: Two supersonic jet passenger planes, the British-French Concorde and the Soviet Tupolev 144, made flights across Europe and Africa.

One year ago: Israeli and Lebanese jets and artillery battled for 12 hours in Southern Lebanon.

Baker campaigns in the Bootheel

State Rep. James Baker of Kansas City, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general, campaigned in the Bootheel Monday.

With about 10 weeks still to go before the August Democratic primary, he estimates he has logged about 20,000 miles and visited 55 Missouri counties in his effort to become the next attorney general.

While in the Bootheel, Baker made stops in Cape Girardeau, Jackson, Sikeston, Dexter and Poplar Bluff Monday. In a brief interview in Sikeston, he noted that he will return to this area from June 5-8 on a statewide whistle stop tour of the state, which will begin June 1 and take 16 days. He plans to visit 57 counties and about 70 cities. Although he calls it a whistle stop tour, he will travel by car, he said.

He plans to do a lot of "old fashioned campaigning," including stump speaking, listening to complaints and answering questions. He will also be accompanied by a band.

Baker pledged to keep the office of attorney general above partisan and special interest pressures and to insure that the office is open to the people of Missouri. "Missouri citizens need to feel that they have an attorney general who will speak for their interests and who will support vigorous enforcement of consumer protection, antitrust, environmental and criminal law," he said.

He listed five areas where he believes the attorney general should be especially responsible.

1. He should intervene in rate cases and present the public's side against large utilities.
2. Go to the legislature each year with a package of legislation involving consumer protection.
3. Make sure the court system is responsible to the people's needs and that the average person has adequate access to the legal system.
4. Enforce the law as it is written and keep out of partisan politics.
5. Remain independent and stand up to special interest groups.

Baker is completing his third term in the House of Representatives.

A.A. Harrison

A.A. "Lonnie" Harrison, 929 Hawthorn Drive, has been inducted into the roll of 50-year members of the Missouri Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star.

Worthy Matron, Lois Cokenour, presented Harrison a 50-year pin in his home. Assisting in the presentation were Harrison's wife Bessie and past Wortyty Matrons Byrdine Mills and Aquilla Grimes.

Harrison has been a member of Sikeston Masonic Lodge No. 310 since 1916.

William Dunlap family holds reunion

BLOOMFIELD — The eight children of the late William and Mirta Garner Dunlap gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Welker, a daughter and son-in-law who live in Bloomfield.

A total of 53 persons attended the reunion.

The children include: Mr. and Mrs. Sam (Helen) Welker, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin (Dorothy) Helenly, and Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Dunlap of Bloomfield; Mrs. Mary Meyers of Albuquerque, N.M.; Mr. and Mrs. Leon (Ida) Armes of Careyville, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. Garner Dunlap and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Dunlap of Advance; and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon (Clara Edith) Sullivan; of Annapolis.

Others present were: Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Welker and children of Michigan; Mrs. Bill Crocker and children of Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Henley and children, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Matheny and children and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Wondel of St. Louis; and Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Johnson and children of Piedmont.

HOBBLING FAMILY

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Most people would find one bad break more than enough. The Ross family had two.

PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY

The family is the foundation

Copley News Service

Author, newspaper columnist and television personality Phyllis Schlafly, busy as she is, still sets aside time for her family.

The wife of an attorney and mother of six children, Mrs. Schlafly taught all her youngsters how to read at home before they went off to school.

The Schlafly family lives on the bluffs of the Mississippi River at Alton, Ill. Despite a daily routine which keeps her on the road, at the typewriter or on the air five or six days a week, Mrs. Schlafly keeps her hand in as a housewife and mother, in the belief that everything begins and ends with the family.

A conservative writer, lecturer and the writer of numerous books on national and international affairs, Mrs. Schlafly broadcasts twice weekly on "Spectrum" for the CBS radio network and every other week on "Matters of Opinion" for radio station WBBM in Chicago. A tough and uncompromising debater, she has appeared on public affairs programs on all three major television networks.

In 1972, Mrs. Schlafly interviewed 22 top American and British experts on the global strategic military balance for a series aired on 70 television and 50 radio stations.

She has teamed up with Adm. Chester Ward, USN, Ret., to write four books, including the well-received "Kissinger on the Couch," a detailed analysis of the secretary of state's foreign and defense policies, published in 1975 by Arlington House.

Together Mrs. Schlafly and Adm. Ward wrote a series of remarkable predictions about the Soviet nuclear buildup and the decline of the U.S. atomic stockpile. They all came true.

A student of military affairs since World War II, Mrs. Schlafly since 1967 has written a monthly newsletter, The Phyllis Schlafly Report, along with a newspaper column.

To help finance her way through college, Mrs. Schlafly worked as a gunner and ballistics technician at a munitions firm during her school years. She holds a B.A. with honors from Washington University at St. Louis, Mo., and an M.A. from Harvard in political science.

A member of Phi Beta Kappa and Pi Sigma Alpha, the political science honorary society, Mrs. Schlafly has received many awards, including seven Honor Medals from Freedoms Foundation of Valley Forge; Women of Achievement in Public Affairs from the St. Louis Globe-Democrat; and the Brotherhood Award of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Receiving degree in nursing from MSU

Pamyla Dyke

MURRAY, Ky.— Pamyla Dyke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Dyke of New Madrid, Mo., graduated from Murray State University on May 8. She received a bachelor of science degree in nursing and was named to the dean's list and the president's list for high scholastic achievement.

Miss Dyke was a member of the Kentucky Association of Nursing Students and served as treasurer of the Elizabeth Hall dormitory council. She was also a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority, which she served as recording secretary, second vice president and president. She served on the Panhellenic Council two years and was president of the Junior Panhellenic Council.

Miss Dyke will begin work June 7 in Evansville, Ind.

REAL ESTATE

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The real estate industry is on its way to a substantial recovery in 1976, says Jerome L. Howard, president of the Mortgage Bankers Assn. of America.

Howard said here recently that sales of houses are up more than 50 per cent from the recession low at the beginning of 1975.

EAST PRAIRIE— Chris Krauss, son of Mrs. Ida Krauss and the late John Krauss, has been named valedictorian of the 1975-76 graduating class at East Prairie High School.

Sharing honors with Krauss is David Wayne Brumley, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Brumley, who has been named salutatorian.

Krauss maintained a 10.75 grade point average on an 11.0 scale during his high school years. A member of the National Honor Society, Krauss was recipient of the Dr. S. P. Martin Award, First Bank of East Prairie and Grace Campbell Community Teachers Association scholarships.

He is listed in the Society of Distinguished High School Students, participated in the senior play and has been employed two years through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act program. He plans to attend University of Missouri-Columbia and become an electrical engineer.

Brumley's grade point average for his high school years is 10.722. He has been a National Honor Society member three years, won the National Council of Teachers of English writing contest and received the H.S. Roberts Award, a Grace Campbell Community Teachers Association scholarship, physics and psychology awards.

A delegate to Boys State, Brumley has been a member of the stage band and marching band four years, participated in the junior and senior plays and was student of the month in each of his high school years and a member of the student council.

He was also a member of the football team four years and the school choir one year and was listed in the Society of Distinguished High School Students and Who's Who in American High Schools.

Baker campaigns in the Bootheel

State Rep. James Baker of Kansas City, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general, campaigned in the Bootheel Monday.

With about 10 weeks still to go before the August Democratic primary, he estimates he has logged about 20,000 miles and visited 55 Missouri counties in his effort to become the next attorney general.

While in the Bootheel, Baker made stops in Cape Girardeau, Jackson, Sikeston, Dexter and Poplar Bluff Monday. In a brief interview in Sikeston, he noted that he will return to this area from June 5-8 on a statewide whistle stop tour of the state, which will begin June 1 and take 16 days. He plans to visit 57 counties and about 70 cities. Although he calls it a whistle stop tour, he will travel by car, he said.

He plans to do a lot of "old fashioned campaigning," including stump speaking, listening to complaints and answering questions. He will also be accompanied by a band.

Baker pledged to keep the office of attorney general above partisan and special interest pressures and to insure that the office is open to the people of Missouri. "Missouri citizens need to feel that they have an attorney general who will speak for their interests and who will support vigorous enforcement of consumer protection, antitrust, environmental and criminal law," he said.

He listed five areas where he believes the attorney general should be especially responsible.

1. He should intervene in rate cases and present the public's side against large utilities.

2. Go to the legislature each year with a package of legislation involving consumer protection.

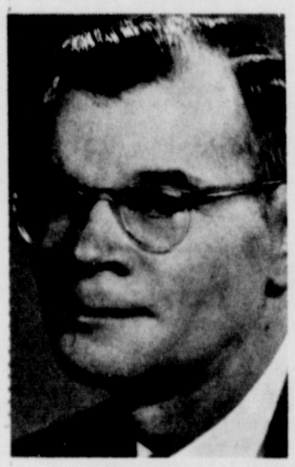

3. Make sure the court system is responsible to the people's needs and that the average person has adequate access to the legal system.

4. Enforce the law as it is written and keep out of partisan politics.

5. Remain independent and stand up to special interest groups.

Baker is completing his third term in the House of Representatives.

Receives 50 year pin from OES

A.A. Harrison

A.A. "Lonnie" Harrison, 929 Hawthorn Drive, has been inducted into the roll of 50-year members of the Missouri Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star.

Worthy Matron, Lois Cokenour, presented Harrison a 50-year pin in his home. Assisting in the presentation were Harrison's wife Bessie and past Wortyty Matrons Byrdine Mills and Aquilla Grimes.

Harrison has been a member of Sikeston Masonic Lodge No. 310 since 1916.

William Dunlap family holds reunion

BLOOMFIELD — The eight children of the late William and Mirta Garner Dunlap gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Welker, a daughter and son-in-law who live in Bloomfield.

A total of 53 persons attended the reunion.

The children include: Mr. and Mrs. Sam (Helen) Welker, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin (Dorothy) Helenly, and Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Dunlap of Bloomfield; Mrs. Mary Meyers of Albuquerque, N.M.; Mr. and Mrs. Leon (Ida) Armes of Careyville, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. Garner Dunlap and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Dunlap of Advance; and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon (Clara Edith) Sullivan; of Annapolis.

Others present were: Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Welker and children of Michigan; Mrs. Bill Crocker and children of Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Henley and children, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Matheny and children and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Wondel of St. Louis; and Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Johnson and children of Piedmont.

HOBBLING FAMILY

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Most people would find one bad break more than enough. The Ross family had two.

PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY

The family is the foundation

Copley News Service

Author, newspaper columnist and television personality Phyllis Schlafly, busy as she is, still sets aside time for her family.

The wife of an attorney and mother of six children, Mrs. Schlafly taught all her youngsters how to read at home before they went off to school.

The Schlafly family lives on the bluffs of the Mississippi River at Alton, Ill. Despite a daily routine which keeps her on the road, at the typewriter or on the air five or six days a week, Mrs. Schlafly keeps her hand in as a housewife and mother, in the belief that everything begins and ends with the family.

A conservative writer, lecturer and the writer of numerous books on national and international affairs, Mrs. Schlafly broadcasts twice weekly on "Spectrum" for the CBS radio network and every other week on "Matters of Opinion" for radio station WBBM in Chicago. A tough and uncompromising debater, she has appeared on public affairs programs on all three major television networks.

In 1972, Mrs. Schlafly interviewed 22 top American and British experts on the global strategic military balance for a series aired on 70 television and 50 radio stations.

She has teamed up with Adm. Chester Ward, USN, Ret., to write four books, including the well-received "Kissinger on the Couch," a detailed analysis of the secretary of state's foreign and defense policies, published in 1975 by Arlington House.

Together Mrs. Schlafly and Adm. Ward wrote a series of remarkable predictions about the Soviet nuclear buildup and the decline of the U.S. atomic stockpile. They all came true.

A student of military affairs since World War II, Mrs. Schlafly since 1967 has written a monthly newsletter, The Phyllis Schlafly Report, along with a newspaper column.

To help finance her way through college, Mrs. Schlafly worked as a gunner and ballistics technician at a munitions firm during her school years. She holds a B.A. with honors from Washington University at St. Louis, Mo., and an M.A. from Harvard in political science.

A member of Phi Beta Kappa and Pi Sigma Alpha, the political science honorary society, Mrs. Schlafly has received many awards, including seven Honor Medals from Freedoms Foundation of Valley Forge; Women of Achievement in Public Affairs from the St. Louis Globe-Democrat; and the Brotherhood Award of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Receiving degree in nursing from MSU

Pamyla Dyke

MURRAY, Ky.— Pamyla Dyke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Dyke of New Madrid, Mo., graduated from Murray State University on May 8. She received a bachelor of science degree in nursing and was named to the dean's list and the president's list for high scholastic achievement.

Miss Dyke was a member of the Kentucky Association of Nursing Students and served as treasurer of the Elizabeth Hall dormitory council. She was also a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority, which she served as recording secretary, second vice president and president. She served on the Panhellenic Council two years and was president of the Junior Panhellenic Council.

Miss Dyke will begin work June 7 in Evansville, Ind.

REAL ESTATE

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The real estate industry is on its way to a substantial recovery in 1976, says Jerome L. Howard, president of the Mortgage Bankers Assn. of America.

Howard said here recently that sales of houses are up more than 50 per cent from the recession low at the beginning of 1975.

ANGULAR BEAUTY CHARACTERIZES DESIGN
For those seeking a new experience in home ownership. The proud occupants of this contemporary home will forever be thrilled at their choice of such a distinguished exterior and exciting floor plan. The variety of shed roof planes contrast dramatically with the simplicity of the siding. Inside there is a feeling of spaciousness resulting from the sloping ceilings. The uniqueness of this design is further enhanced by the spiral stairway. The informal living zone has a beautiful built-in kitchen with Jenn-Air range, dining area with sliding glass doors to patio, and spacious living room with wood- burning fireplace with heatalator. Also included on first floor is a bedroom or den, large bath and laundry room. The second floor features a large master bedroom, setting room or bedrooms, bedroom with balcony and large bath. Located in choice subdivision. Aletha Dr.

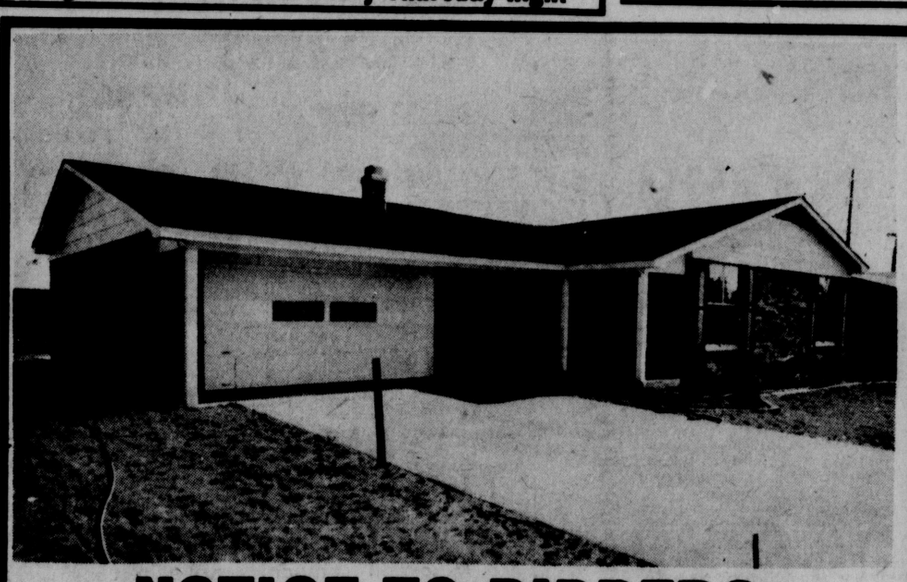

ATTRACTIVELY DESIGNED
Brick and verticle siding are blended together to produce a rustic, textured exterior on this beautiful ranch home. The interior is decorated with rich wood textures in the abundant cabinets throughout the home, and also the wall decor. The living room features a wood-burning fireplace and adjoining raised dining area with sliding galss doors to patio. The built-in kitchen has a Jenn-Air range and custom built cabinets. There are three bedrooms with private bath for master bedroom. The main bath is unusually large and uniquely decorated. The spacious laundry room also has beautiful cabinets built-in. this is one of the most outstanding homes on the market today. Call us for an appointment. 207 Ellen Dr.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION
Designed for efficient living, every room of this home has been designed for utility. Divided from the remainder of the home are three bedrooms and two baths, one of which is private to the master bedroom. An open kitchen- dining area promotes ease in preparing and serving meals. Sliding glass doors connect this area with a back terrace. The living room has beautiful wood- burning fireplace. An extra large storage room or shop is connected to the carport. 205 Ellen Dr.

MORE THAN A TOUCH OF LUXURY
Here is a design for the family that needs the space and comfort of a larger home. The kitchen is a model of efficiency, open to the dining room yet shielded from view from the formal living room. The laundry is in an ideal location, just off the kitchen with entrance from the double garage. The entry foyer and hall gives ideal traffic control to family room, wood- burning fireplace, and the four bedrooms. This plan also includes two and one-half baths and plenty of closet space. Built by Ziegenhorn & Pratt Construction Co. 214 Sherrie Dr.

CONVENIENT LOCATION
Two large bedrooms, living room, kitchen has electric range, and glassed back porch. Private separate bedroom off carport. Central natural gas heat. Large metal storage building. Drapes are included. Conveniently locations. 518 Lake St.

District would remain uncommitted.

Additionally, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. could collect some support.

Brown's state coordinator, Frank Jaeger Jr., said the young governor's forces would be active in at least seven of the 10 districts and hoped to elect one delegate in each.

He said he had received many unsolicited inquiries of support from uncommitted delegates to the congressional district meetings, and that some of them did not like being "delivered" to Carter by the Eagleton group.

Spainhower said there was "no movement at all" for Brown.

"There's still strong Carter sentiment in Missouri," he added.

road during the chase.

The chase led to Highway 114, then Highway 60 and onto Highway 51 near Fisk with police still in pursuit. The chase continued to Route J, then to Route T and finally to Route DD in Butler County.

The sheriff's officers and highway patrolmen joined the pursuit with speeds reaching over 100 miles per hour.

A state trooper finally stopped the vehicle by blocking the road. The highway patrol and Butler County sheriff's officers made the arrests.

Piedmont woman receives minor injuries in accident

PIEDMONT— A Piedmont woman received minor injuries Monday in a one-car accident five miles east of town on Highway 34.

The woman, Rebecca L. Edwards, 20, was a passenger in an eastbound car driven by Addie B. Edwards, 59, of Freeburg, Ill.

The highway patrol said the accident occurred at 10:50 a.m. when the Edwards woman lost control of the car, which ran off the road and stuck a culvert.

The injury victim was taken to Wayne County Medical Center here.

Cravens St., plans to attend college at either Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn. or University of Mississippi at Oxford. He is undecided about his major.

Myers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Myers of 1007 Davis Blvd., plans to attend Westminster College in Fulton and major in political science and English. He also hopes to enter law school after completing his education at Rolla.

Two hundred and eighty eight seniors received diplomas in Monday's graduation ceremony. Speakers for the event were Rev. Jerry Statler, who delivered the inspirational message, and seniors Bobbie McGee, Michelle Powell, Loomis Mayfield and Peter Meyers. The theme of this year's commencement was "The Times Are a Changing" and the speakers called for better understanding between the new and the older generations and encouraging the Seniors to adapt to the changing times and make their contributions worthwhile.

District would remain uncommitted.

Additionally, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. could collect some support.

Brown's state coordinator, Frank Jaeger Jr., said the young governor's forces would be active in at least seven of the 10 districts and hoped to elect one delegate in each.

He said he had received many unsolicited inquiries of support from uncommitted delegates to the congressional district meetings, and that some of them did not like being "delivered" to Carter by the Eagleton group.

Spainhower said there was "no movement at all" for Brown.

"There's still strong Carter sentiment in Missouri," he added.

road during the chase.

The chase led to Highway 114, then Highway 60 and onto Highway 51 near Fisk with police still in pursuit. The chase continued to Route J, then to Route T and finally to Route DD in Butler County.

The sheriff's officers and highway patrolmen joined the pursuit with speeds reaching over 100 miles per hour.

A state trooper finally stopped the vehicle by blocking the road. The highway patrol and Butler County sheriff's officers made the arrests.

Piedmont woman receives minor injuries in accident

PIEDMONT— A Piedmont woman received minor injuries Monday in a one-car accident five miles east of town on Highway 34.

The woman, Rebecca L. Edwards, 20, was a passenger in an eastbound car driven by Addie B. Edwards, 59, of Freeburg, Ill.

The highway patrol said the accident occurred at 10:50 a.m. when the Edwards woman lost control of the car, which ran off the road and stuck a culvert.

The injury victim was taken to Wayne County Medical Center here.
